What's Inside?

- ✓ Activities
- ✓ Puzzles
- ✓ Morse Code
- ✓ Jr. Ranger Pledge

Around the Courthouse

Look through the old-fashioned viewmaster called a stereoscope, that was popular entertainment before TV! You should be able to see a "3-D" image.

Can you find the safe?

Try to move the heavy vault doors in the gift shop. This was the original County Treasurer's Vault.

How many saddles are on display?

- How many steps does it take to process silver from rock? _____
- Ed _____ discovered silver and started the town of Tombstone! His silver claim would be worth $20 million today!

How many people were hanged in the courtyard? _____

Around the Courthouse

The gambling table was for a game called _____!

How was the piano transported to Tombstone?

Why were so many important documents written by hand?

(Hint: It's not because the books wouldn't fit into their computer printers!)

Cowboys really did use bedrolls for sleeping! This bedroll is a piece of canvas and a _____ stitched together. Old bedrolls are rare because when they got worn, the cloth was reused for other things. (Cowboys recycled, too!)

There are _____ different types of barbed wire here.

Draw a picture of your favorite!

How was the fire hose cart pulled to a fire? _____

Rocky's Corner

Can you answer these questions about Tombstone Courthouse State Historic Park?

FOCUS On... C. S. Fly

Camillus Sydney Fly, or C.S. as he was called, was a photographer in the 1800s. C.S. and his wife Mollie ran a successful photography business in the boomtown of Tombstone. We are used to seeing photographs with stories in the newspaper, but that was unusual 100 years ago when C.S. began producing photographs of famous people and events. Copies of his work are on display here at Tombstone Courthouse. C.S. Fly went with General Crook when he went to talk to Geronimo about surrendering and going to live on a reservation. While they were talking with Geronimo, C.S. was posing the Apache warriors and telling them to look one direction or the other. Most people considered this to be very brave. The Apaches thought he was crazy!

Camillus Sydney Fly

When C.S. returned to Tombstone, he sold copies of the photos to a national magazine and to people who wanted authentic photos taken of Geronimo and his warriors. Would you like to have been a photographer in Tombstone's past? What event would you have photographed?

Geronimo poses with members of his tribe and General George Crook's staff during peace negotiations on March 27, 1886

C.S. Fly's image of miner George Warren first appeared in Souvenir of Bisbee published in 1900
