Nearby Parks

If you're having a great time here, don't forget to visit one of the three nearby state parks!

Riordan Mansion State Historic Park (67 miles) Built in 1904, this 40-room historic mansion is an excellent example of rustic Arts and Crafts-style architecture. The mansion was also designed by Charles Whittlesy who designed the Grand Canyon's El Tovar Hotel. (928) 779-4395

Fool Hollow Lake Recreation Area (85 miles) Nestled in the tall pines of Arizona rim country is a 150-acre lake perfect for fishing, canoeing, kayaking, or escaping to cooler weather. Enjoy the great outdoors! (928) 537-3680

Lyman Lake State Park (102 miles) There's no shortage of activities at this secluded getaway: hiking, fishing, swimming, boating, archaeology, and petroglyph trails are all available! And with no size restrictions on watercrafts, boaters can enjoy waterskiing and speedboating. (928) 337-4441

Park Observatory

Homolovi State Park has its own observatory with star parties every month, except December. Enjoy close-up views of the night sky far away from city lights!

Drones

Do not use drones in the park! The Department of Interior operates an air base in Winslow, AZ, and flying drones can have a serious impact on aircrafts.

In the high grassland of 14th century northern Arizona, an ancient people found a home along the Little Colorado River. These people. the Hisat'sinom (known to archaeologists as the Anasazi), paused in their migrations to till the rich flood plain and sandy slopes before continuing north to join people already living on the mesas, people who are today known as the Hopi.

The Hopi people of today still consider Homolovi part of their homeland. They continue to make pilgrimages to these sites, renewing the ties of the people with the land. The Hopi say that the broken pottery and stones are now part of the land and are the trail the Bahana will follow when he returns.

In an effort to protect these sites, the Hopi people supported the idea of Homolovi State Park. This idea resulted in the establishment of the park in 1986. The park serves as a center of research for the late migration period of the Hopi from the 1200s to the late 1300s. The park also offers hiking trails, camping, and interpretive exhibits.

Thank you for visiting!

Archaeology Sites

Homolovi Sites I and II are easily accessible to visitors.

Homolovi I: Parking lot is located about 1 mile past the campground and is next to the Little Colorado River. An easy 0.3-mile stroll on an old dirt road leads to the site.

Homolovi II: A 0.4-mile paved trail that is wheelchair accessible. The trail allows access to the largest of the park's archaeological sites containing an estimated 1,200 to 2,000 rooms. It is believed that these pueblos were once home to ancestors of the present-day Hopi people. Much of this activity took place during the 14th century. Hopi migration stories, architecture, pottery styles, and art motifs tie the Hopi to the inhabitants of Homolovi.

Hiking Trails

Nasungvö: ("Place of Rest" in Hopi) A 0.9-mile primitive hike across high prairie grasslands. The trail goes between the Visitor Center and the campground area.

Tsu'vö: ("Path of the Rattlesnakes" in Hopi) A 0.4-mile loop trail between the twin buttes within the park. This nature trail is also an archaeological trail where you can see milling stone areas and petroglyphs.

Diné: This 0.7-mile trail goes to Diné Point and connects with both other trails.

Wildlife Viewing

Homolovi is an excellent spot for viewing raptors and grassland birds. Species include northern harriers, redtail hawks, golden eagles, kestrels, horned larks, roadrunners, ravens, burrowing owls, and numerous other species.
